"The Merneald Click" in Dublin Univerelly-Society of "The Wallwhilman acs"-Professor Howden's Views on the Cluracter and Influence of Whitman.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, April .- Some eighteen years ngo, when I was an undergraduate of Trinity college, Dublin university, one of the most agreeable literary societies to which it was then considered fashionable to belong, was known as the Mermaid club, the title of which was borrowed from the famous gathering which included such wits as Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Beaumont, Fletcher and other world renowned worthes of the Elizabethan era.

Foremost among the scholars and thinkers, not only of the society, but of the university, stood Edward Dowden, university professor of English literature, a man with mind of the strongest and finest fiber and a character of such force and elevation as to challenge the reverence of the wildest undergraduates and the mest sincere respect of his colleagues innong the fellows and profess-

The Mermaid club met once in two weeks at the college rooms or private residence of some member in rotation, and during term we held one or two meetings at the house of Mr. Dowden, Upon one of the latter occasions I happened to see upon the library table a paper covered volume of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," n book which for some time had been attracting considerable attention among university men and in literary circles of the Irish capital.

Mr. Dowden, whose word was law upon such matters, had recently delivered a lecture upon Walt Whitman, and 1 young men, who remembered Longfellow's advice about "ever seeking something new" professed enthusiasm on the subject of this new evangel. Disciples of the western teacher were known as "Waltwinismadacs," and on the well established principle that martyrs' blood is the seed of the church, our organization prospered through suffering. We met contempt with scorn and greeted criticism with the retort that "Father" Walt" was above criticism.

The fact of the matter is that many of us did not understand what Whitanan was "driving at," and the small i movement with which we were associated may have been increly a revolt against the satiety of super-refinement in a literature , which was being dominated by Temyson and delanched by Swinburne. As we had vague ideas that Victor Hugo's romanticism had broken through the traditions of Freuch classical drama, so we believed that Whitman's realism furnished a new link in the chain of worldwide poetic development. At all events the mintelligible is always magniticent to youthful and aspiring "souls," and accordingly we had faith in Whitman for the same reason that other good Christians believe in the thirty-nine articles.

Anxions then for Mr. Dowden's opinion, I ventured to say, mon the occasion mentioned, "Mr. Dowden, do you regard Walt Whitman as an educated man?"

"Well," he said, "Walt has probably not had what is called the advantage of a university education.' His father did not spend as much money in having him tanght to write bad Latin and worse Greek verses as our fathers have spent upon us, but there are a great many important things in the world beside classical languages and the higher mathematics, and Walt Whitman knows more about such things than you or I do. In the largest, widest sense he is a thoroughly well educated mari, and, as the exponent of a world embracing democracy, he opens our hearts and minds to greater possibilities for the whole human race than any writer is capable of doing who works within the prescribed literary formulas.

"The ideas upon which much of our poetry rests have been few in unmber, practically exclusive, and now worn almost threadlaire. Whitman adds enormonsly to the number and magnitude of coal mine, the canal boat, miserable in this world. dens in tenement houses and on the back! streets of great cities; into jails, almsshops, and moving freely among all, classes of the world's toibers he has observed the dignity and worth and noble possibilities of human character, even scions of, or indifferent to, the hard lot he knew how all those 300 men, saving man. A great meeting PURVEYORS OF NEWS. was arranged and largely attended by those who regarded Whitman as a literary scavenger, and who were anxious to relieve the university and polite society from all complicity with Mr. Dowden in the expression of respect for one who was said to have had nothing but contempt shown him in his own country.

Speakers representing various colleges and nearly all the learned professions rose in turn, and with disconnected passages for texts proceeded to overwhelm Whitman's book with ridicule. There were a few timid speakers for the defense, but Howden, who had opened the discussion, enjoyed the privilege of replying in full to all that was said during the entire evening. Accordingly he girded himself for the conflict. He took notes of the various speeches and was kept busily employed arranging book markers in certain volumes before him on the table. His spirited reply consisted of tt) a brief general review of poetry, (2) sketch of modern democracy, (3) series of ad homineur arguments | which fairly "knocked the bottom" ont of attacks based upon detached sentonces and made by men whose critical. faculty seemed to have been guided by reading of Whitman.

Downley took each important quotation made by his adversaries, showed it's relation to the context and explained the bearing of the entire passage or poem mon Whitman's leading ideas of democracy and oddimism. With great enthusiasm he brushed away the cobweb fancies of mere prettimes and jingle which make up a great part of so called and sound soutine at.

[Copyright, 1892, by Edgar W. Nye.] My last letter was written at Beatrine, Neb., at a hotel which was on fire, and as a number of errors have crept luto the press regarding my bravery at this great fire, known as the Paddock House lire, I will say that I did nothing at that time that was not my plain duty; nothing that I would not do again. I would have been less than man if I had shrank from my duty at that time.

I was engaged in writing, in fact, had just seafed myself and loaded up my stylographic pen with bluing, which I carry with me, and was just about to think, preparatory to writing, when the

However, as I reached the foot of the first fire escape she returned to conscions mess and sprong out of my arms with a cry of horror. I caliged her, however, so that her fears at last vanished, and with a deep drawn sigh, having already noticed that I was very much out of breath, she took me over her shoulder and carried me to the foot of the fire es-Cape.

I to thee recently that King Humbert of Italy has severely criticised the Roman tire department, and Lagree with him that it needs a thorough everhaullng. Having seen the Roman fire department myself, I would say that the insurance company that would take a risk in Rome would deserve to die in Walit.

In the first place, the Roman hose is decayed. It would not hold railroad ties or loop pides. I did not get to see Humbert while I was there, but I wrote him a well timed note regarding his fire department, and in that note I said that if he would give less attention to his personal appearance and more to the husband on the wave, to snap the golden question of the Roman fire department cord and to go forth unfettered, forgethe would make a hit.

This winter has proven what I said to indeed tough? be true. I wrote a piece also for the Roman morning paper-The Roman Carolle, it was called -a piece which I signed "Veritas," mal in which I said it was time to call a halt. The piece was never published, and I had to leave so recombine as I had arranged for. Rome before I had got my visit out on account of it. There were some good points in it too. I managed to mildly roist Humbert in it, and got off two or three good local hits in the piece; then I got 11 just into good Italian by the resmaint where I stopped while in Rome.

This winter Hundert was out to see a Roman fire, and the department did not reach the scene for an honr and a half. Over 7,000,000 frames worth of property was destroyed. One engine tipped over on the way to the fire, and the others might as well lave done so, for the hose would not hold water-even the course and hol it done by this time. Professor Knustler was an old German pedagogue, noted for his absentmindedness. He and a friend, another old professor, used to take a daily walk together time day, when the walking was very laid, Professor Kunstler was on his way to the corner at which he and los triend always met, when he encountered a young student whose face he recognized dimly, having seen it every day for some weeks in his morning class. The professor bailed the boy, who was wading through the mud to get across the street.

"Have you seen Professor Muller?" he usked, "Yes, Herr Professor," replied the student, pausing in the midst of a mud puddle to remove his cap respectfully; "the Herr Professor Muller is at the corner, waiting for you." "Good," replied Professor Kunstler, looking amiably at the lad over his spectacles; "1 tlank you; you may be seated!"-Argo-

W. P. WALTON.

THERE seems to be a present possibility that not only Judge Morrow, but every circuit judge now in office in the State, will hold over, without re-elecresult, if at all, by reason of the dissatistaction of the other-seekers in the Legislature with the report of the joint redistricting judicial committee. The constitution declares that no bill passed by the Legislature shall become a law until the expiration of three months after ad journment, nuless the Legislature itself shall declare that an emergency exists for its becoming a law sooner. The "kickers," headed by Pettit, the renegade, and supported by a few others in the Honse and Senate, who want to be elected circuit judges, and who think that the whole machinery of the State government should be just in motion only to carve out for them suitable districts view every little whipper snapper from gency clause. If this is done, there can and wire it to the Courier-Journal or umbus. Congress will be asked for aid. he no election for circuit judge or Com. Times. It is a waste of telegraph tolls The whites cannot get the negroes to monwealth attorney this year, and since and gives everybody that tired feeling, help resone other negroes without paythere can be no other election sooner Do give us a rest, O! Smaller and Somthan November, 1897, it results that all mers. circuit judges and Commonwealth's attorneys now in office will hold over till the 1st of January, 1898. Thus it is that the constitution is to be violated, the will of the people thwarted and monarchical practices introduced into the State, because, and only because, a few Senators and members of the House have failed to get districts in which they think they could be elected.

Jons B. Thomesos very "frankly and homestly" tells the Washington corcespandent of the Courier-Journal that he is not for Mr. Cleveland and the Times suggests that the 8th district will doubtless with equal candor and honesty declare that it is opposed to being misrej resented at the Chicago convention. Mr. Thompson has no especial reason to love Clevejand and no one blames him for not doing so, but that is a family matter with which the democrats of the district take no interest and the Mercer county man will find that they are not disposed to permit him, at their expense, to gratify a personal pique.

The G. A. R. meets in Washington Sept. 20, and no other road can offer as many inducements and attractions to the normbers as the famous C. & O. Route.

Gov. Brown has reinsed to pardon Harper, the mar convicted in Madison of running a gambling house and fined $500 in addition to a year's sentence to the penitentiary. The judge, commonwealth's attorney and many others signed the petition chiefly for the reacon that they regard the law as a severe one and not because they believe he is not guilty. The governor has sworn to execute the laws as he finds them and very properly says that if the one in question is too severe the legislature should repeal it.

The cause of woman suffrage seems to be advancing backwards. The lowar Legislature refused by a large uniprity school elections, while Massachusetts, frage on women 20 years ago, has, if her Legislature is an index, about changed her views entirely on the question. The results in Wyoming have not been such subject in his ideas of the practicability May 17-18, of woman sullrage.

The republicans of Walte county held a meeting at Campton and unanimously endorsed Joe M. Timely and Interesting Notes.

(Special Corre pomience.) NEW YORK, April .- It would seem ns if the long, ships of certs due to the desire to appear Sylphlike have lind their day, since everybody is now hacussing the new Russian blones dresses, and it is rafe to say that within four weeks every woman who can compuss the result will

The blouse has this domile value, us it is just the thing for a slender young hg-1 me and looks equally well on a plump one. There is a snug lining titted like a corset cover, winch is necessary. Other wise the blonse would "littch". The sleeves are rather tull and wrinkled at the top and plain toward the bettom. Theses are seen now in which there seems a determined attempt to revied the old double skirt, and these blon come semewhat umber the same beat. Double skirts are not graceful, like the plain skirts, with their unbroken hors. The bell skirt is still made, but the plants are no longer laid under and food tened. The back breadth is put on inone double buy plait, fastened only at the top, which allows it to fell in a graceful sweep, carrying out the idea of the Wniteau plan for a certain extent.

which falls with easy grace. The sleeves front and back to the neck, over a ginp of white crape. A belt of white the back, falling nearly to the foot of the dress.

I saw a young lady in the street yesterday with a dark green dress, and on the lack of the neck was fastened a Watteau how of dark red ulbon, which fluttered wildly in the wind and in one instance tlapped around unother woman's neck. And she wasn't very prelite in taking it off. I think it stattled her, and then she became angry that she had allowed it to startle her, much as men do when

The pretty house dress can be quide in challie or percale or pique, or, in short, my goods that one prefers, only, in case it should be made of washable goods, narrow French hemmed ruffles should take the place of the rose plaiting, or pinked out rutlles for silk.

The new spring capes are some of then in very astonishing colors. For instance, I noticed one that was of lilac Redford cord, embroidered in fine gold thread and studded with gilt nail beads. It was to be worn as a reception and full

I notice that nearly all enpes and spring wraps, except the covert couts. have little curled ruchings of ostrich or peacock's plumes, and the capes, so far as I can see, do not vary in shape or style from those of full. ORIGIN OF A FINANCIER Why Fred P. Oleott Preferred Business In Politics.

NEW YORK, April .. - The men of New York state who have gained repute by reason of their achievements usually de-Olive Hurper Rescribes the Latest Styles vote themselves either to politics or to in Bress for Women-A Pretty Surale literary pursuits. Yet it is probably Home Dress Described and Illustrated, true, as was once said by Commodoro Vanderbilt, that the men who shape the business of the nation, at least so far as finance is concerned, are more influential and yet less heard of muside the circle of linanciers than are the politicians or the literary men. Just now Mr. Fred P. Oleon is attracting attention to himself by reason of certain nelin venicuts which he has consummate lan the financial world, and while ars more may not appear in the newspager as frequently as does that of some of the men who mer comment in New York state polities, yet Mr. tilcott. is a man of greater influence perhaps than my politici in, because through his management be controls millions and millions of dollars.

Mr. Olcoft has recently attracted to himself the artention of financiers, not only in this country, but in Europe, began e la seems to have been alle to are range for the reorganization of railread properties which practically gridiron the ruture south. The securities of the varions comparaes accorded in this reorganis zation amonot become than $100,000,000. a much larger sime than at the beginning of the civil war it was thought that the untional government would have to provide 1.1 order to pay the expenses of that contest. The arrangement also involved the management of nearly 9,000 miles of railway, or practically almost all of the cultout communication between the states east of the Mississippi river and soluth of the Olmo and Potentiac.

Mr. Olcott some years ago was doubtful about his career. He had been beel belted in. Francis Kernan, who was n made by laying plaits up to a point in senator from New York also, was much interested in this young man, and used sometimes to say that the opportunities ribbon is twisted around the whist and offered for a career as a financier were a Wattean bow with long ends decorate far more tempting than any of the allurements of politics. Mr. Dleott spent some twelve years en Wall street, learning the methods of that great financial whirlwool.

> To his susprise he was offered the uppositinent of comptroller of New York Mate hy Governor Lucius Robinson. To be coreparaller of New York is practirally to be the banker of the state.

> When Mr. Dhoots became compareller he realized the very great political advariage which he held in that position, and when the politicians of his party said techin "We will now nonmiate you for governor," the temptation was very great to listen to such proposition. But Mr. Dhodt had already received proposals from men who controlled vast amounts of money to return to Wall street as the head of a banking institution, and after a good deal of deliberation he decided that the rewards of a tinancial career were far more tempting than those of politics. He therefore went to Wall street about ten veices ign, and he became known as the man who did not desire to destroy properties, but to preserve them. In that capacity he took rank with Mr. Pierpont Morgan, who is generally regarded as the greatest financial and constructive genus that Wall street his known in the present generation. Allcott is esteemed a more andacions and risky men than Morgan, and some of those who have found fault with his methods have jusisted that some day he might go too far and entail rum upon lumself and the properties which he undertakes to preserve.

> Like most of the men on Wall street who accomplish great things, Mr. Olcott is a good liver. He likes the good things of life. He is foud of a fast horse, he enjoys the theater, and he thinks that perhaps the highest art is that of perfect cooking. He looks like a man who lives well.

> Within the past year Mr. Olcott has financed properties amounting to nearly half a billion of dollars, or an amount more than the national debt, and of course the man who is able to the what he has done in the money world is recogulzed by the men who control millions as a person of great financial genius.

ORNAMENTAL WATER FOWL

Same Information Concerning Handsom lirerds of Swans.

Every town and village, however small, now has its park. Most of these contain miniature lakes which ought to linve, if they have not, beautiful stately swans in them. It will seem odd to remember that a hundred years ago swans were reared for the table. The liesh of old swans was not pulatable, but the eygnets were highly esteemed and held the place win hat the turkey now has inthe parltry realm. Then the turkey came and displaced the cychet for eating. Now the swan is simply a beautiful ornemental wat r fowl.

The male swan "hangs around" during this process, and takes an interest in the family prosperity. When just hatched the cygnets are covered with down of a gray color, and with no deliv icrom- Keep the meest the best and largest variety of pany the old birds to search for food, After awhile they are covered with feathers of a dark brown color, but change gradually for a period of nearly two years, when they become purely white. Many of these birds live to a good old age. It has been said that a swan's chances for living seventy years are as good as those of a temperate man who takes a cold water bath daily.

BLACK NECKER SWANS.

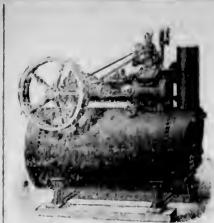

Another species worthy of mention, on account of handsome appearance and large size, is the black necked swam, found in the southern part of South America, having a range from the Straits of Magellan as far north as Brazil. The nasal knob or berry on this swan is red, teathers on neck and head eyes. The body plumage is pure white and the test are pink. This peculiar arrangement of colors may be called good "famey," and it is certainly interesting to those persons who abhor monotony, The black necked swans have been domesticated, stand confinement well and breed freely in that condition.

Beeves for Philening.

Not all animals have the same uptitude to lay on flesh or flesh of the same quality. There is not only a great difference in breeds, but an almost equal difference in individual animals of the same breed. There is not only a difference between animals in their ability to digest food and convert it into meat. but different animals put a gain on their carcasses in different places. While one will store it on the most undesirable parts, like ribs and torequarters, another will jon the bulk of its gain upon loins and hind quarters, and as a pound of loin or ham is worth more than twice as much as a pound of the fore quarter or inside fullow, too much attention enunot be given to the selection of aniumls for heefmaking, not only of the best beef breeds, but also of the best beef types of these breeds.

With a little experience and close attention one needs make but very few mistakes. By selecting Shorthorns or Herefords or their grades and those with heavy hind quarters with a large development of hams and broad, strong loins, small heads, fine horns, mellow skin and fine, silky hair and a general thrifty appearance, one will not often be disappointed in the result. - Rural New
